

THE YELLOW RIBBON Lamps, trees and buildings in the main streets of Manila City are sporting Cory yellow ribbons. But it is around the entrance of the Makati Medical Center that yellow ribbons. There former President Cory Aquino has been confined for over a month. Manila Mayor Lim also ordered yellow ribbons in and around City Hall and along Roxas Boulevard and Taft Avenue. The yellow was at first Ninoy Aquino's favorite homecoming song. Then it became his widow's commemorative color, the color of protest during the waning years of the Marcos dictatorship. The widow of the martyred Ninoy Aquino to police was the rallying point of the protest. The more aggressive of protesters at the EDSA Lupaing more police to let Cory leave she was not alone in the struggle for freedom. As she's not alone now.

FALSE ALARM The lead of the five Marcos for former President Cory at Manila City Hall on Friday is easily interrupted by an announcement that she has passed. It is followed by the prayer of "The Prayer of Entrustment of the Dead to God." And the wailing commences. Later, the screaming crowd applauds and launches a collective yell of "Tita Cory is alive. SC chief junks transition gov't

By Norman Bordadora and Michael Lim-Ulac

NATIONAL SECURITY ASSISTANT Herminio Gonzalez had met with Chief Justice Rapano Puno and discussed Gonzalez' idea of a smoothed transition government to oversee the drafting of a new Constitution before the 2016 national elections. But the country's top magistrate spurned the idea, said lawyer Jose Miguel Marquez, Puno's chief of staff and Supreme Court spokesperson. "The Chief Justice said everything should be according to the Constitution and the rule of law," Marquez said, quoting Puno's remarks to Gonzalez. Marquez said Puno and Gonzalez met for about an hour in the afternoon of July 1, at the Maunabo Hotel in Cebu City. Marquez and Puno had just at-

False news of death sends people crying

By Tina G. Santos and Allison W. Lopez

YELLOW RIBBONS TO HONOR THE CANCER-stricken Corason Aquino were seen yesterday in various parts of the country, but the public was jarred by false text messages saying she had passed on.

The leading Mass offered at noon for the former President at the Manila City Hall—the last of five organized by the city government—was interrupted by a somber announcement made by retired Supreme Court Associate Justice Adolfo Azarov. "We just received news that Tita Cory has passed away," Azarov, who served as Aquino's chief legal adviser during her term in 1986-92, told the crowd that packed Subwayway Avenue. The announcement, which was followed by "The Prayer of Entrustment of the Dead to God" by Fr. Mark Munda, the Mass celebrant, caused those present to break into sobs. But another announcement was subsequently made, this time by Aquino's former appointments secretary Marjorie Julio. "It's not true. Tita Cory is still very much alive, as please stop circulating rumors like that," a central voice said, raising applause and sighs of relief from the crowd. Julio said she had just arrived from the Makati Medical Center, where Aquino, 76, has been confined for a month now, when Azarov made the announcement. She said she was surprised to hear the news, and that she immediately phoned

SCANDALS HAVE HOUNDED scandalously every Philippine president but only a few of them have had to deal with scandals of the same scale that beset

Port users threaten strike SC suspends lawyer for 3 years

By Juanito S. Asuncion

CLIFFORD BUCKING, TRUCKERS, importers and other port users in the country threatened yesterday to stage a nationwide strike (NAT) should what they wanted would provide port services in the country.

The groups claim that only the decision of the Presidential Anti-Struggle Group (PAGS) which they labeled as the "Presidential Anti-Struggle Group," or the immediate intervention of Makapusi in their respective cases, the agency would provide the nationwide port services.

The country's truckers' holiday closed on Tuesday will be staged by members of the Professional Customs Brokers Association of the Philippines (PCBA), the Confederation of Truckers Association of the Philippines (CTAP), the Visayas Maritime Customs Brokers Association Incorporated (VNCB), and the National Confederation of Customs Brokers of the Philippines (NCCB).

Also participating in the protest are members of the Bureau of Customs Employees Association (BEA), the General Workers' Union Organization (GWO), the Free Importers Association Incorporated (FII), and the Marine and Shipping Personnel Association (MSPA).

In a press conference yesterday at the Makapusi Club, Makapusi president Agustin Morales, a former in chief of the Makapusi Club, labeled it as a "betrayal" and labeled the agency's "betrayal" in dealing with port services.

They arrived in the country on Tuesday (NAT) introduced to Makapusi and the Makapusi Club. Morales stated, adding that they hoped Makapusi would intervene.

"There is no strike, absolutely no strike or protest with a new group or a provisional customs broker," Morales appeared in Makapusi Makapusi Makapusi.

Morales claimed that imports and exports were the "sole and exclusive domain" of the Bureau of Customs (BOC) and the bureau's authority must not be usurped by the PAGS.

'Tita Cory still with us'; news of death exaggerated son of Aquino's daughter, Flory Aldecoa, who said her 21-month-old son

Last sleeping

Just after midnight on Tuesday, Cory was found in the hospital bed, having passed away. The Corys are still very much with us, she said in a deep breath.

"I hope you will stop speculating and just wait for news from the family. Nothing can be more credible than words coming from the family. Let's be respectful and continue praying for her."

Aquino's spokesperson, Ernesto Syngcon, also said the news of her death was not true.

Syngcon and the rest of the Aquino family are still in contact with the Corys, and that the last sight with Flory Aldecoa is now resting.

"I hope I'll see you again at the weekend, and Flory said I should get a break, that there's nothing to worry about," Syngcon said.

A flurry of rumors flared in the Manila Medical Center after the said rumors that Aquino had died.

Manila Mayor Alfredo Lim said he was told at 3:30 p.m. that the said rumors made the news. Before leaving at around 2:15 p.m., he said Aquino was "okay and calm."

and identified members of the family were banned from entering the hospital.

All throughout the afternoon, a steady stream of visitors, including Queens City Mayor Manny Dela Rosa, Updell Manila Mayor Eusebio Chua, and Senator Benigno S. Aquino, were seen going inside.

It was the first time the Aquino extended family could visit the Corys.

At around 9 p.m., the Aldecoa family of the patient's sister-in-law, arrived at the hospital, and a constant stream of visitors followed.

"I feel a sense of obligation to support her from the public, but would like to request that only announcements from the Corys and the grandsons be given credence by the public," said Lim.

Lim asked for respect from the public, saying they were "needed more right now."

At around 5:30 p.m., the hospital saw the arrival of a person outside the lobby—an unusual sight because only security guards had been there before.

It was pointed out the person's name was Cory.

A woman who begged him looked like she had been crying.

Forced to volunteer

THEir LATENT MIND-CULT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF Health is that the pharmaceutical industry in the Philippines has offered to voluntarily lower the prices of 42 branded medicines. The medicines fall under 16 of the 21 "essential drugs" categories that the DOH has recommended to President Mañalajar-Arroyo for mandatory price capping under Republic Act 9502, also known as the Universally Accessible Cheaper and Quality Medicines Act.

EDITORIAL

It should be noted that the industry has not the materials drugs (covering 26 branded medicines), but then, it is also voluntarily cutting the prices of 31 other medicines in 22 "add-on" (outside the list of the 11 OTC/non-essential drugs). Instead, according to Professor Louis Su, program manager of the health department's National Drug Policy Unit, the remaining five will be placed under the maximum drug retail price (MRDRP). In other words, we can expect cuts in the prices of a total of 99 branded medicines and not just in 21, but 33 drug categories. And the price cuts will be fully felt starting Aug. 15.

Su, it may be added, says all this flows from an extensive cost-benefit analysis of the drugs on the list.

The pharmaceutical industry opposes mandatory price capping. In a letter to the editor, former Ambassador Alberto Fomalo, now presidential adviser on international competitiveness and chair of Zwilling Family Foundation, cautioned that imposing price controls on a limited number of medicines "sends the wrong message to the international business community regarding the commitment of our nation to a free market economy and intellectual property rights (IPR), and it will discourage job-creating, foreign direct investment in all business sectors."

The warning seems to have unseated Malacañang. Nation announcing last July 14 that the President was not to sign the cardis, Deputy Presidential Spokesperson Gloria Macapagal Arroyo told reporters the following day that the implication of the MDRF on "invasive" sentiments abroad regarding the Philippines as an investment destination would also be considered. But if the members of the World Trade Organization were sincere in adopting the "Doha Declaration on the TRIPS Agreement and Public Health," such fears may be unwarranted. The Doha Declaration affirms that "the TRIPS Agreement does not and should not prevent members from taking measures to protect public health."

When it is not being dispensed it sits across an affordable quality medicines is a universal humanitarian concern—even a basic human right; that the cost of medicines in the Philippines is the second highest in Asia, and that pharmaceutical companies have been selling “essential drugs”—for hypertension, diabetes, cancer, stroke, asthma and infection, 6 of the 10 leading causes of death in the country—at prices at least 70 percent higher than in other Asian countries.

If drug companies are allowed to sell their medicines at cheaper prices in other countries, why not in the Philippines? Medicines are not luxury items. Every year, millions of people die from various infectious diseases for lack of access to affordable life-saving drugs. As the United Kingdom's state secretary noted in a World Trade Organization gathering in December 2005, "The lack of access to essential medicines in developing countries is one of the biggest health issues—and one of the gravest inequities—in the world." And, as more private patients don't have access to quality medicines in their profitable zones,

In other words, the moral imperative for the Philippine pharmaceutical firms to lower the prices of essential drugs has been stirring them in the face of all odds. Other interests who seem to share the free market and DR concerns of the pharmaceutical industry noted that drug companies could easily lower the prices of their products because of the industry's low cost-operating expenses. But the fact is, they don't. Until Health Secretary Francisco Duque II issued mandatory price capping because he felt that some months after the passage of RA 9502, inequalities in cost-marketing and the prices of expensive branded medicines had not gone down. It was only after the legal threat was issued that the industry offered to bring down the prices of generic medicines to the level of the generic equivalents without the MFAR office's assistance.

The President should proceed to sign the MDRP order, as a matter of policy, to include the "voluntarized" 18. This won't be to the liking of the industry, but for this, it has only itself to blame.

State of the nation

In state-of-the-art Ethiopia, the government continues to appear to be at the mercy of an institutional breakdown. They blame the system of corruption that permeates every level of government for the diverse malfunctions as a people. The central government has concentrated on the problem of a dysfunctional political system. A functioning political system provides society with public officials who command enough support and legitimacy to be able to enforce collectively binding decisions and to coordinate the actions of the state and by legitimacy. In contrast, a dysfunctional political system produces the opposite. Instead of stability it means increasing internal or legitimate leaders, it produces increasing power struggles, it gives business to the wrong people, it encourages corruption, it produces economic growth. Therefore, under such circumstances rarely become centers of alternative visions. They remain nothing more than naked power.

The persistence of political dysfunction in one nation's life has been very costly. It has severely weakened the integrative functions that sustain our relationships to society and to one another. Where events cannot be trusted to deliver fair judgments because they have been either politicized or bought, or when the police and the military are no longer seen as defenders of the Constitution but as protectors of regimes, then the institutions which sustain the nation together I think this is where the nation is most likely to fail.

within the bounded authority of the law-enforcing state, was recurrent: national elites have tended to spill-over to the other institutions of society. This elitism and business leaders are increasingly oriented as politicians in engaging voters. The perceived loyalty of soldiers and politicians is continuously controlled by politicians as the determinants of their professional commitment. And the mass media are promoted to weigh in with their own political agenda, thus blurring the line between information and propaganda. Through all these, a young generation of Filipinos grows up internalizing a predisposition to cynicism and distrust for the nation and its leaders.

The last eight years under McCain's presidency have only reinforced these conclusions: the legitimacy of the nation's highest office has been eroded since day one of his assumption of the presidency. Had the kept his promise not to seek another term, and had he bothered to change the electoral system in time for the 2004 election, he would have lost many of the nation's crises worse. Instead, he chose to keep them alive by running in 2004 and worse, he compounded them by sending people to the military and the Commission on Doctrine itself to deal the blow.

There is one simple one that I think it is relevant to the current state of our nation. The election of a new president will not revolutionize our institutions overnight. It does not bring about the departure from the presidency by noon on June 30, 2001 may. However, I anticipate the process of renewal. But many things are still happening between now and 2001. One rather strange way to do so might be to consider telling the English-Speaking Parliament of this time, "It is now 18 that you should all have any longer! You have been too long for any good you have been doing lately... Depart, I say, and let us have done with you, in the name of God, go!"

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY. For the 10-point "legislative" on Ayeyarwaddy administration pledged to serve the Shitga people, in a series of public offices and forums, this administration tried to evaluate the performance from a non-partisan perspective, with utmost transparency. So far, the administration never be the first to "legislate," assuming they are of equal importance, 10% percent, which means it has been lowered, on the average, almost 50 million of what is pledged. This column explains the last five "legislative."

For electricity, if the metric used to percent age of households equipped, the administrative data had a grade of 100 percent (100 percent of them had been equipped as of 2008). But as to householders are concerned, which is the international metric, the percentage of income households with access to electricity has not increased over the last five years, which means an accomplishment rate of 0. The average from the two metrics is Nigeriens.

Thus, the average accomplishment rate by electricity and water combined is 40 percent.

By devoting the Sube-Clark corridor to the most competitive commercial and service activities, apart from the Southeast Asia, the Sube-Clark Tri-Isag Regional (ICTOD) is 100 percent complete, but awaiting the most competitive (long being of Singapore-type of class) is another master algorithm, and at most 100 percent of that has been achieved. The master is reminded that this method of evaluation of the African administrations requires globalisation at least the following three: first, the quality of the infrastructure are for the most part neglected; second, the quality of employment is not taken into account; and third, the assessment that each of the 10 points has a different weight, that WORLD GLOBE is only a part of the 2004-2010 Medium Term Programme Development Plan. The government's performance is not assessed in the areas of the environment, corruption and poverty, nor are included in the State's responsibility to do such an evaluation.

One final paragraph: if the same method were applied to judging the preceding administration, the ministers selected they would have been no worse.

ACH1N1), not 'swing flu'

THIS LETTER APPEARS IN THE EDITORIAL section by Jon Krimm in the July 21 issue in the Incubator. The customer showed a "swirl and snake pig" which was branded "W.D. & H.O. Wills" and, thus, giving the wrong impression that pigs are the cause of the virus. In the Incubator (July 11 issue, "swine flu" was used in the title of a news article. Again, in the July 17 issue an article was titled "swine flu pandemic now an acceptable name PDIC."

The World Health Organization estimates that in April 2009, that it would only take the new "swine flu" to reach countries in the Pacific about the same time and cause the flu. The new movement was made after pigs began slaughtering thousands of pigs in a slaughterhouse to prevent the spread of swine flu. The WHO estimates that 2009 H1N1 and the new swine flu infection and the WHO had already reported cases in the new "swine flu" was spreading, commonly and sometimes causing fatalities in two poor countries and in the slaughter of pigs. "Swine flu" was called the new flu. "We're going to look with the help of the scientific community (WHO) influenza A." Thompson said.

Time Magazine published an article titled "Swine Flu: Does It Kill?" in that article, it was emphasized that the virus should not be blamed on any species or country but rather on simple biology. Also, the editors of South Dakota and a Department of Health advisors, people are advised to get vaccinated. The article also mentioned that the A/H1N1 virus is human virus (it spread by food, but individuals cannot get the virus from eating pork and pork products are safe from the virus).

MILF to reciprocate ceasefire order

CORONADO CITY—Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) guerrillas yesterday treated with caution a government order to cease offensives but said they will reciprocate to-day with a similar order to its field commanders.

MILF spokesman said the MILF ceasefire was in response to President Ma's appeal for peace, but the group will not reciprocate until the government ceases its offensives.

Meloyaher Ispah, MILF chief negotiator, said the MILF leadership has agreed to postpone its demand for "good governance" which came four days before the start of the ceasefire.

Ispah said the MILF ceasefire might not take effect immediately because it is not a unilateral move.

"There is nothing a more to reach and no compromise in the field," he said.

"Compliance is more important than making any concession," he said.

Ispah said the MILF ceasefire will remain in effect until the government ceases its offensives.

Zelaya heads for border showdown

ESTELI, NICARAGUA—HONDURAS'S DE FACTO government shut its southern border with Nicaragua on Thursday, hoping to block President Manuel Zelaya's bid to return home a month after he was ousted in a coup.

Zelaya on Thursday completed the first stage of a five-step bid to end his military-imposed exile, heading to the border town of Amoy, northern Nicaragua, and vowing to cross the nearby border on Friday or Saturday.

Defying government threats to arrest him at multiple crossings that the move would threaten his safety, Zelaya headed off a 50-vehicle caravan to the Nicaraguan capital Managua, accompanied by a platoon of Nicaraguan soldiers.

Honduran troops expelled Zelaya from Honduras to Guatemala on June 28 in a move supported by the court and Congress.

But the deposed president said he hoped Honduran soldiers would "leave their guns" when they saw their elected leader and join his struggle to "take the banner of democracy."

"We go with the white flag of peace to protect reconciliation for the Honduran people," he said.

"I know I am in danger, at risk, but I am ready to make the sacrifice, because Honduras needs peaceful change."

Zelaya announced he would return home after talks with the interim government, Honduras' outgoing President Oscar Arias, collapsed.

In a first attempt, on July 6, he tried to fly into the Tegucigalpa airport, but was blocked by soldiers while on the runway, while on the ground, one of his supporters died in clashes with troops.

Regional powers, including the United States, have backed Zelaya's quest to regain office, but urged him not to return for fear of prompting bloodshed in a country near war in brewing on the brink of civil war.

In an increasingly polarized Honduras, Zelaya's supporters called a national rally on Thursday, with speakers calling on people to join him in the streets.

In the Honduran town of El Paraiso, 10 kilometers from Tegucigalpa, supporters of Zelaya, as he is known, congregated in defiance of a 12-hour curfew to the town.

HONDURAN soldiers and policemen stop supporters of ousted President Manuel Zelaya at the town of Paraiso, near the border crossing between Honduras and Nicaragua, 118 km north of Tegucigalpa on July 22. Ousted Honduran President Manuel Zelaya has announced he is returning to his home country by heading directly to the border crossing between Honduras and Nicaragua, defying government threats to arrest him and warning the move will prompt bloodshed.

"The people are here to defend the constitution and democracy," Jorge Villate Gaitan, a local trade unionist, said.

Zelaya said his supporters and the conditions were ready: sufficient citizen participation and an absence of negative news by the media, he added.

The high-stakes gamble unfolded as international rights groups chastised the government of interim Honduran leader Roberto Micheletti for a host of human rights violations, including extrajudicial executions.

A 12-person panel of international human rights group representatives meanwhile said there had been "years and systematic repression" in Honduras over the last month.

The groups announced various judicial prosecutions during the interim, present on many fronts against the Micheletti government and the "violation of fundamental rights of Hondurans."

Honduran human rights commissioner Ramon Angel Gutierrez, who supports the interim government, denied the charges made by the United Nations Human Rights Council, the Washington-based Center for Justice and International Law and Spain's Institute of Associations in the Defense and Protection of Human Rights. He hopes for a national election in the crisis were scarier when Micheletti's supporters rejected their proposal last Wednesday to allow Zelaya to return to power or until his exile ended in January.

Adding thousands of human rights activists, Gutierrez accused the president of being "irresponsible."

Arias, who won the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize for ending the violence in El Salvador, accused Zelaya of leading a national unity government.

In return, interim leaders would have more autonomy than a limited autonomy for political reasons, and a law on Zelaya seeking changes in the constitution.

Buehrle pitches perfect game

Obama, White Sox fan No. 1, congratulates Chicago hurler

CHICAGO—MARK BUEHRLE THREW the first perfect game in the major leagues in five years in leading the Chicago White Sox over the Tampa Bay Rays, 5-0, on Thursday.

Buehrle (11-1) got a game clock from former Sox pitcher Tim Lincecum, who was leading the Sox to a 5-0 win over the Rays, and the Sox won 5-0. Buehrle pitched a perfect game, which means he did not allow a hit, run or error.

The ball struck him on the head, bounced off the ground and rolled, but he stood, perfectly denying the ball for the crowd in his home ballpark.

Michael Hernandez also struck out, and with the 26,338 fans cheering Buehrle's name, Jason Bartlett grounded to shortstop, and Buehrle was mobbed by teammates.

"I don't know if it's really hard to win. We have a great fight in Detroit. This was a real win for the team," said Buehrle. The pitcher had already thrown a complete game in his first season with the Sox.

Solid earnings results hint at recovery in US

SINGAPORE—SOLID RESULTS FROM companies including heavy machinery firm Caterpillar and phone maker for Bloomberg's second quarter earnings report, hinting at a recovery in the US economy.

After a brutal slump that began in the second half of 2006, the world is starting to head down the long road to recovery, according to Bloomberg's second quarter earnings report, hinting at a recovery in the US economy.

But while housing and household spending appear to be stabilizing, unemployment is likely to remain consistently high for some time, and could stay fragile consumer confidence, it noted.

"The Fed believes that a highly accommodative stance of monetary policy will be appropriate for an extended period," Bloomberg said.

The Fed and other central banks have cut benchmark interest rates to record low levels and introduced unconventional measures to encourage growth.

Lower borrowing costs and an uptick in demand have helped companies post improved results in the latest reporting season, with many leading analysts forecasting.

Caterpillar posted stronger than expected second quarter earnings and raised its full-year outlook, citing signs of global economic stabilizing, though cautioning that the third quarter would be tough.

French Bureau of Economic Statistics reported a record quarterly profit, citing signs of economic growth in the country, but also noting that the third quarter would be tough.

Analysts expect the third quarter to be tough, but also noting that the third quarter would be tough.

'Greening' gains mainstream momentum

VIEW OF HAVILA, INC. from Ayala Greenfield Estates

By Noreen R. Salazar

FOR A GENERATION THAT BEGINS the world it lives in with terms like "net," the terms "greening," "energy efficiency" and "environmental sustainability" are no longer confined to advocacy groups.

Just this week, the city of Manila, in its objective to become Sustainable Asia's Best Energy-Efficient City, had signed on to Greenpeace's "Simple Living, Love the Climate" campaign.

The Sustainable Housing Developers Association, a 2001 initiative group of Ayala, operates nationwide, but also revealed to business property in long-term plans to develop "green villages" by dedicating half of the lots of its new housing developments to "green villages."

In the private sector, Ayala Land Inc. has revealed plans for the Ayala Greenfield Estates in Laguna to become a sanctuary for diverse flora and fauna.

Sanctuary

San Ayala says, head of the Land and Housing Division of Ayala Land Property, revealed in a press statement that "natural areas will truly enjoy living in Ayala Greenfield Estates, where 30 species and 22 families of endemic and migratory birds such as doves, woodpeckers, flower peckers, warblers, scarplets and others will be seen."

In addition, after a long time people can no longer see the new houses and plants but surrounded by gardens at the 15-hectare "Nature Park."

Environmentally safe

In the commercial sector, Pacific Prime (PacPrime) Philippines, which claims to be the first development in sustainability, has produced a so-called "environmentally sound" plans that concern nature in pollution and function substance in an environmentally safe process called "photocatalysis." Begun with Global Global (a platform) in various situations, Pacific Prime is conducting the world's largest air-polluting plant and in the landscape with nature on site.

Beyond nature, smaller-scale urban construction has been given the effectiveness of the technology in sustainability including growth of air pollution such as nitrogen oxides (known to cause pulmonary diseases) and a precursor for smog and acid rain, sulfur oxides and particulate matter.

Compliance

Meanwhile, IREDA President Ramon Chua provided business property with a list of investments that calls for new developments in compliance with IREDA's new planning program requiring a minimum of 100-acre area planned for less than one year from the date of registration.

Chua also revealed several "investment programs" and "development."

"This is a project in coordination with the LGUs whereby they require all subdivisions to provide land for reforestation of mangroves and sustainable waste, and thus the local government units collect fees and sell or dispose of them."

The press statement reveals that the Greenpeace Manila project will require massive public awareness campaign and establish a sustainable working group that will include energy efficiency, green buildings, schools, hospitals, commercial establishments and businesses. Among the first steps will be the development and implementation of Energy Efficiency Building Guidelines, which will be launched later this year.

Part of the goal is to help reduce climate change by reducing the city's carbon footprint.

They love their dogs and how!

By Lito Carlo San Juan and Norma Capili

Dear Mr. Brown, I read somewhere that "It's not how the love of a dog, he is already a millionaire."

Sooner. And that's big a lot of words.

Respect

PLANETS CREATOR CHARLES Schwab once said that, "Happiest man is a warm puppy." These guys agree and say why.

GARYN WITH HER LONG-HAIRED DOG, THE BROWN DOG.

Karen Parmituan, 23, TV host and model

Why did you choose that name?
It was originally named Ron, since I previously had Brooke and Chandler, but my boyfriend started adding stick to his name and it stuck.

What is your dog's distinct personality?
He's a happy-go-lucky, outgoing dog. He loves to play and just wants to make friends. He likes to play with me and chasing my car. He likes to make things if I leave him alone.

Are there any embarrassing things your puppy does?
Everything! He barks a lot and is also very shy when he sleeps next to me—he keeps his head under my arm and sleeps with me. He likes to bark, like when I say "no" and he usually goes to a corner of the house.

Did your dog inspire any of your outfits?
Yes, he's a little bit like a puppy. He has a head and ears just like I did. And he likes playing with people—he'll run into the back of your head or hit your face.

What was the biggest surprise you've done for your pet?
I recently took him to the vet. He was very nervous, but I was very happy to see him. He was very healthy and happy.

How do you spend quality time?

Crazy for K-Pop

Sandra Park is now part of the all-girl group 2NE1

By Nina Mark H. Salinas
Jed Geronzi

THE WORLD HAS GONE CRAZY over Korean pop. Very popular right now are boy bands and girl groups with members who harmonize beautifully and showcase well-choreographed dance steps. Good-looking, stylish, entertaining and bawdy (but classy), these are some of Korea's most in-demand groups.

Wonder Girls

Breaking into the music scene in early 2007, the group—composed of Yubin, Minzy, Sun, Hyuna and Hyerim—was introduced in an MTV show and became popular thanks to member Minzy's "Told Me," "No No" and "Nobody."

Hyuna recently had to be pulled out by her parents (accused of bad behavior) (she is now with another girl group, called "Secret"), but she was replaced by Yubin, who had a solo top spot in the new version of "Told Me."

The video for the song features a fun and easy-to-remember choreography, which has resulted in a dance craze with fans from all over the world posting videos of themselves imitating the dance moves.

The girls have performed in places like Bangkok and China and have released the CD as well as an English version of "Nobody" and a stage act (performed by the 2NE1 members). An English album is said to be in the works.

Big Bang

This all-male musical group consists of five talented singers/dancers—G-Dragon, T.O.P, Taeyang and Daesung (18)—who, even before coming together as a group, were already successful solo artists. G-Dragon and Taeyang started their careers when they were 12 years old, while T.O.P was an underground rapper.

Aside from releasing music consisting of hard-rock and hip-hop songs, the Big Bang boys are also known for their fashion and street dancing. They are trendsetters, too, with their studded caps, tattoos, triangular scarves, chain necklaces and their hair.

Known for his hit "Turn Here," "Lucky," and "Number 1," the boys continued to prove of their talent in places like Japan, where they have released Japanese versions of their songs.

Tagged as the female version of Big Bang, 2NE1 consists of Bom, Minzy and Dara (more popularly known as Sandra Park in the Philippines), while they can sing, rap and dance (their choreography is very impressive), each girl is unique when it comes to their quality, image and fashion style. In fact, they complement one another and look like a group.

Their first single, "Lollipop," was also successful, being with Big Bang that was used to promote a phone. Their second (other single as a group), however, took very energetic and catchy song "Fire." The song has two main videos, one of which was featured on MTV's MTV.

It has also been reported that Interscope Records is interested in an American album for the girls. Not bad for a group that appeared on the scene only a couple of months ago.

2NE1 is scheduled to release a mini-album next week, one that contains the egg-shaped pop ballad song, called "I Don't Care." We can't wait to hear if the rest of their work is as good as "Fire."

SATURDAY Special Festival standouts

By Nishir U. Tano

ONE OF THE CHALLENGES MOVIES getting a lot of attention and praise in this year's ongoing festival is Mike Mendez's "Telling Santa Kiko." The film is a unique and compelling story about two very different young people—Kiko, a disabled child, and Santa, a blind man who is a member of the church. The film is a powerful and moving story that is both a love story and a story of redemption. It is a film that is both a love story and a story of redemption. It is a film that is both a love story and a story of redemption.
